Whew, here we are. If you are seeing this, I actually managed to complete this and make it available to wider audience. First off, I apologize for any potential mistakes in translation or wording. Those are certainly all my (4th Dimension) fault, since while I was advised by the above people, and this would either have never seen the light of day or been MUCH MUCH worse. So praise for any brilliance in that department should go to them, and any criticism should be heaped on me.

Since this is my first attempt translating a manga, I apologize to you out there that have opinions on how that is supposed to be done graphics wise. I'm pretty sure, most won't mind my screwups with the font choices and such, but I'm certain that there are those who experienced pain at some of my choices. I'm sorry for your pain too.

If you are interested to see more of the Florians and the original that spawned many of the ideas for the Reflection, search for "Gears of Destiny subtitles" or "Gears of Destiny translation" on YouTube to find a translated Let's Play of it, which I'm doing on my chanell. Or type in this address: https://www.youtube.com/channel/ UCvSc8HDIxu0ejd0QYTt5Idg . The game itself is mostly cutscenes, and IMHO is the best bit of franchise we had since StrikerS.

Finally I'd like to address couple of translation issues, that really could not fit in the margins of the pages, but are kinda important.

Translation notes:

Page 10, Shario on Hayate's abilities: The investigation and analysis are the closest words we could find for concepts of a) gathering new information by breaking something up and b) developing new knowledge understanding by analysing existing information. I'm pretty sure this is the first time in the franchise they mention something like this, and it's probably some remaint of the BoNS's functionality that allowed it to scoop up enemy spells.

Page 18, Arf on Fate not calling Lindy "Mother": this is probably the most annoying line in the entire issue to translate AND is one I'm least confident about. The wording here used was the one I was most comfortable with, but it still might not be completely right, so take it with a grain of salt. The crucial thing to take from this is that Fate is still not comfortable with calling Lindy mother (or hasn't at all) and is worrying herself into inaction on the issue. There is also possibly a hint that she will need something to PUSH her to make that first step.

Page 25, Eltria vs Eltoria: I prefer the later, because that's how it seems it's pronounced in Gears of Destiny and it's spelled Elutoria. But, it seems from what I have heard of some, that the official English spelling is Eltria...so yeah, pick which you prefer.

Page 27, the soil being "exposed": The exposed bit is not in the original. In the original she says that the soil has become completely loose/-soft. It was then pointed out to me that this might not sound so bad. And it's not, looser soil is easier to cultivate and such. But not in this situation. Eltoria is suffering from ridiculous level of drought, which also means loose soil is susceptible then to wind erosion where wind blows the valuable topsoil away and ruin the land. This is especially problematic since plant life, which tends to anchor the soil has become rare. Hence all the winds blowing and dust clouds. For a similar IRL case, only less severe, search for "Dustbowl" on wiki.

Page 27, Death Eclipse name: This is a rather literal translation of two kanji (死蝕: death/die and eclipse/occultation/be defective) making up it's name. Problem is, Death Eclipse might have been meant more in way as Death erosion since they use 蝕 often as a suffix for various types of erosion. Erosion by water, corrosion, melting of ice caps etc. Hell, when read it's like one letter away from the word for actual erosion. And in a way Amita describes just that. DE is causing the greenery and such to be gone, which then exposes the soil to wind to strip it bare and therefore ruin it for further use.

Page 32: Nothing is gonna happen to me. In original she says just, onee-chan is/will be fine. But I felt that to be a bit too short and wierd in English. Hence rewording it more in the line of English, but keeping the third person.

Page 40: The rare animals bit is not meant in a way where worms just target rare animals, but to say that while vegetation is scarce, animals are REALLY REALLY rare, so while worms don't subsist on them, they will happily gobble up any they come across.

Page 42: I think this is the only SFX that I left untouched? Largely because there was no way I would be able to hide the katakana using only new English SFX and my limited Photoshop FU.
